In the event of a suspected conflict of interests, or breach of the non-compete clause, the relevant member of the Supervisory Board or the Management Board shall immediately inform the Supervisory Board. If the Supervisory Board determines the case at hand to be a breach of the non-compete clause, the relevant member of the Management Board or the Supervisory Board is obliged to immediately discontinue the breach and transfer the gains from the business in question to the Company, as well as compensate the Company for any damages.

If the Supervisory Board deems the matter to be a relevant conflict of interests, the member in question immediately terminates the controversial relationship; but if the relevant conflict of interests is not merely of a transitional character and cannot be eliminated, then the Supervisory Board assesses the need for the person's office as a member of the Management Board or Supervisory Board to be terminated and takes action accordingly.

In the event of a potential conflict of interests, the individual member of the Supervisory Board offers an explanation of the conflict of interests and abstains from participating or making decisions on issues related thereto.

A potential conflict of interests should be taken into account by the Supervisory Board in the selection of candidates for members: candidates with existing conflicts of interest that could significantly affect their decision-making will not be deemed suitable to be appointed members of the Supervisory Board. In the selection procedure, a candidate must disclose information on membership of other management or supervision bodies and an assessment of the potential conflict of interests.

Furthermore, in their work, individual members of the Supervisory Board are not bound by the opinions or directions of those who elected, proposed or appointed them, taking full personal responsibility for the execution of their duties.

Management Board

In the event of a suspected conflict of interests or breach of the non-compete clause, the relevant member of the Management Board immediately informs the Supervisory Board. If the Supervisory Board determines the case at hand to be a breach of the non-compete clause, the relevant member of the Management Board immediately discontinues the breach and transfer the gains from the business in question to the Company, and compensates the Company for any damages.

The members of the Management Board must be constantly alert to the existence of circumstances resulting in an actual or potential conflict of interests related to the performance of their work or function, and must act in accordance with the internal rules on the disclosure and prevention of conflicts of interest. They may not use the information acquired in relation to performing this function to promote the interests of themselves or somebody else.

In the event of a potential conflict of interests, the relevant member of the Management Board offers an explanation of the circumstances related to the conflict of interests to the Management Board and the Supervisory Board.

The procedure for the elimination or disclosure of a conflict of interests and for the exclusion of the member of the Management Board from the decision-making process because of the actual or potential conflict of interests must be documented in writing and explained.

The Rules of Zavarovalnica Triglav on the management of conflicts of interest stipulate and define:

- The term "conflicts of interest of the Company's employees";
- The duty to disclose regularly and periodically any actual or potential conflict of interests;
- The duty to disclose any personal or other relationships with third parties;

- The rules, procedures and measures for the detection and management of conflicts of interest.

9. PROTECTION OF THE INTERESTS OF EMPLOYEES AT ZAVAROVALNICA TRIGLAV

Zavarovalnica Triglav is convinced that competent, enthusiastic, healthy, satisfied and motivated employees are crucial in order to achieve the business objectives of the Company. Many HR management activities are therefore focused on achieving these goals. Zavarovalnica Triglav is further aware that its business goals, as well as the economic conditions, are subject to constant change. It therefore regularly redefines and re-evaluates the priorities in HR management.

Zavarovalnica Triglav grants all employees equal rights irrespective of their nationality, race or ethnic origin, national or social origin, gender, skin colour, health status, disability, religious or other beliefs, age, sexual orientation, trade union membership or material standing, taking into account the real differences in the positions of individual employee groups.

Zavarovalnica Triglav protects the dignity and privacy of employees, taking appropriate measures to protect workers against mobbing and other repeated or systematic reprehensible or obviously negative and insulting behaviour or conduct directed against employees in the work place or in connection to their work.

Aware of the fact that continuous and targeted professional training is crucial for developing and maintaining competences, the insurance company offers its employees the possibility of systemic specialised and general education and training, that is based on the need to increase each individual's knowledge and competences. In this framework, employees have an opportunity to participate in various forms of training, including both in-house training courses and external formal forms of education. The purpose of the educational and training activities is to foster progress and exchange key knowledge crucial for the employees' expertise in individual business lines. An important form of transfer of knowledge and good practice is employee mobility between the companies of the Triglav Group. They give special attention to training and coaching of all managers who play a key role in the implementation of various HR system and organisational culture transformations.

Zavarovalnica Triglav offers scholarships and various forms of cooperation with faculties to attract potential young employees in areas of professional interest for the Company.

To ensure the long-term motivation of its employees, the insurance company has set up a bonus system (remuneration policy) which is designed to retain adequately professionally qualified, competent, responsible and dedicated employees, whilst discouraging risk acceptance, which would extend beyond the allowed risk of the insurance company, thereby maintaining the adequate capital soundness of the insurance company. A vital part of the bonus system is the target-oriented management system, which the company supports with a system of annual quarterly interviews with employees. During these interviews, employees and their superiors together set each employee's professional and development targets and competences that must be strengthened by each individual within the following year, which enable them to work towards their goals and to make further progress. Target-oriented management and development of competences are used to guide the employees and develop their potential, but are also used to motivate them through their participation in the process of building the objectives of the organisation and to motivate them by creating a nurturing work environment.

The management of key and promising employees who hold or will hold jobs crucial for the business operations of the Company is also of the utmost importance. Zavarovalnica Triglav develops specialised forms of training and adequate systems to support the careers of these employee groups.

Employees are systematically included in the decision-making process through direct and indirect participation. Direct participation is encouraged by the insurance company through functions where employees are involved in the regulation of the conditions, organisation, dynamics and intensity of their work, as well as through different collective forms of employee participation in decision making (department and section meetings, divisional colleges, etc.). Indirect participation is implemented through elected workers' representatives in the Works Council in regional units and at the headquarters, and through the Works Council as the central body of employee participation. Another form of indirect participation is conducted through representation in the Supervisory Board where workers' representatives participate in the decision-making process on issues concerning their interests.

In the process of collective bargaining, the employees participate in a tripartite negotiating system between the Management Board and its support departments, the trade unions and the Works Council in order to regulate salaries and other working conditions.
